

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a method for filling a compressed-gas container, in particular a compressed-gas container in an airbag system, with a gas mixture, or for producing a gas mixture in a compressed gas container. According to said method, a gas mixture or at least one gaseous component of the gas mixture is introduced into a cooled compressed-gas container in the form of a gas or liquid-cooled gas.